MEMBERSHIP Categories

The American Logistics Association (ALA) is a corporate member-based Association. All individuals seeking ALA membership must be employed by a member company in good standing.

Corporate Members

Corporate members are any company (non-military) that provides products/services to the military's commissary, exchange and/or MWR systems. This includes, but is not limited to, manufacturers, manufacturer representatives/brokers, distributors and industry media. A company may include up to four individuals to be part of its corporate membership (at no additional cost). One person should be designated as the company's "Voting Member" - this person will have the privilege of voting in all Association elections and will be the recipient of annual membership renewal information for the company.

As part of their ALA membership, all Corporate Members receive access to the "Members Only" section of the ALA website; the ability to participate in Association conventions/meetings; a subscription to ALA's Worldwide Directory (featuring contact information for current ALA member companies, as well as information on the various military service agencies); the Executive Briefing - ALA's weekly industry newsletter featuring service, government relations, membership, and local Chapter related information; legislative support and advice; local Chapter affiliation; and access to an expert, professional staff comprised partially of former military personnel-all waiting to assist you.

Annual Dues

Using the chart to the right, choose the dues structure that describes your company. Dues are then based on the company's annual gross military sales revenue or volume as listed per dues structure. ALA's fiscal year runs from July 1 – June 30.

Individual Members

An employee of an ALA member company who is not included among the four individuals listed as authorized corporate members. Individual Members receive all of the same benefits as Corporate Members, excluding the voting privilege given exclusively to the company's "Voting Member."

Annual Individual Dues: $206.00 US

*Membership dues are deductible as ordinary and necessary business expense under the Internal Revenue Code, as ALA pays the proxy tax for lobbying. Be advised that dues payments, voluntary assessments, contributions and gifts to the American Logistics Association are not deductible as charitable contributions. Please consult your tax advisor.
